Class Expectations

The lecture videos will be pre-recorded and publish on canvas. We will be covering an entire semester of Precalculus in just 6 weeks, so the pace of this course is very quick. Students will have assignments online & handwritten. If you are not doing a little bit of work each day, you will quickly fall behind. Making use of my office hours (listed above) is probably the best way to get to get help, but you can also e-mail me.

Completing Xronos Online homework

When a due date passes on an assignment, Xronos will record what your current mastery level is on that assignment and that will be your grade for the assignment.

It is important to take your time on assignments and use the instructional material within a lesson to get help. I am also available for questions on these assignments during my office hours/class time if you need any help.

Lastly, you have 24-hour support from Xronos if you run into any problems while working on your assignments.

Completing Written homework

The assignments are already posted, and due at the end of the semester, I encourage you to submit them as early as you can. The solution should be precise and in details, please show all your steps to get full credits. The lowest one will be dropped.

After you complete your answers, please upload to the canvas as a scanned file.

Quizzes

There are 17 Lecture Quizzes which will be given and each of them has a certain deadline. There will be three attempts, and you will have unlimited times before submitting. No calculators will be permitted during quizzes. There are no quiz make-ups. The last quiz due date will be August 9th, the answers will be posted the next day, so you will have enough time to review for the final.

Academic honesty

Please refer to UF's academic honesty code for more details on the student code of conduct. Cheating in any capacity will not be tolerated. Students are expected to treat one another and the instructor with respect.

Students requiring accommodations

If you require an accommodation for this course, you will first need to register with the Dean of Students Office. They will provide you with documentation specific to the accommodation you require. You will then need to bring me this documentation so that I can make necessary arrangements. This should be done as soon as possible.
